Get to know Bunge at Canada's Farm Show Regina, SK, returning March 17–19, 2026

Regina, SK (Dec. 17) — Canada's Farm Show Regina, SK, presented by Bunge, returns this March as one of North America's most important agricultural gatherings. Set for March 17–19, 2026, the event offers a unique opportunity for farmers, agri-business professionals and industry leaders from across Canada and around the world to connect, explore innovation, and prepare for the upcoming growing season.

This year's show follows the recent merger between Bunge and Viterra with much of it taking place in the Bunge International Trade Centre, located at REAL District in Regina.

"Bunge's ongoing involvement as title sponsor of Canada's Farm Show demonstrates their commitment to Saskatchewan's agricultural sector and the Regina community," says Trent Fraser, Acting President and Chief Executive Officer of the Regina Exhibition Association Limited (REAL). "Together, we look forward to expanding the show's reach and creating an even greater impact."

The combined company brings together complementary grain-handling, origination, processing and distribution networks — creating a platform with the scale, resources and global reach to better connect Saskatchewan agriculture to the world. This enhanced footprint and increased diversification across crops, geographies and supply chains are designed to bring greater resiliency, flexibility and options to Saskatchewan's critical agriculture sector. For farmers, this means improved market access and the ability to reach more international buyers than ever before.

"Canada's Farm Show is a great showcase for the latest products and innovations in our industry, as well as a productive forum for learning and meaningful dialogue about how we move forward as an industry," said Kyle Jeworski, head of Bunge in Canada. "The relationship between Canada's Farm Show and the company is based on a foundation of mutual interest in improving the business of agriculture, and supporting Canada's reputation as a safe, reliable, and sustainable supplier of food and feed products."

Building on the success of last year's new date and format, and guided by the show's pillars of innovation, education, and collaboration, Bunge remains a key contributor to the demonstrations, conversations, and connections that define the event. Stop by booth #11601 in the Bunge International Trade Centre to meet the Bunge team and discover how they're helping farmers navigate global markets, explore new technologies, and drive innovation across the agricultural sector.
